Nuclear medicine survey

A survey to establish the range of software that is used in nuclear medicine and PET departments in the UK to produce quantitative results is being undertaken. This will aid the IPEM Nuclear Medicine Software Quality Group (NMSQG) to understand the variability in calculation of quantitative results and therefore allow future audits to be efficiently targeted. The deadline to respond is 20 December.

Trainee Induction Day 2020

We are in the process of putting together the programme for the IPEM Trainee Induction and Specialism Day 2020, which is being held on 17 January in York, and are looking for your help.

- What do you think we should include in the programme?
- Would you like to be involved on the day? Speaking, chairing sessions, helping facilitate discussions, planning a trainee social?
- Do you have ideas for speakers you would love to hear?

If you would like to be involved, or have any ideas of items we should include, please get in touch with us at Conferences@ipem.ac.uk. We want this to be a great opportunity for all trainees to meet, network and learn but we need your help!
